

Rockford Hills

Nestled at the foot of Vinewood Hills, Rockford Hills is one of Los Santos' most affluent neighborhoods. Home to sprawling estates and the headquarters of corporations like Lifeinvader, Rockford Hills caters to old money power players in the city.

Origins

Rockford Hills emerged in Los Santos' early history as an enclave of the business elite. Tycoons built opulent mansions along its palm tree-lined streets. The concentration of family wealth cemented its reputation as the apex of high society in the city.

Distinguishing Features

From its perfectly manicured lawns to Roman-inspired architecture, Rockford Hills exudes prestige. Properties range from two-story Mediterranean villas to modern sleek compounds with floor-to-ceiling glass.

Security is paramount in Rockford Hills. Homes sit behind gates and tall privacy hedges away from prying eyes. Security patrols vigilantly guard the neighbourhood around the clock. Some accuse Rockford Hills residents of being snobbish and aloof from greater Los Santos.

Corporate Headquarters

Rockford Hills serves as the corporate base for major LS companies including Lifeinvader, Fleeca, and Von Crastenburg International. Lifeinvader in particular has made Rockford Hills synonymous with new money tech wealth. Its sprawling 10-building campus occupies a large portion of the neighborhood.

Residents Multi-generational wealth dominates Rockford Hills. Old tycoon families like the Von Crastenburgs and Richards have resided here for decades. They look down on new money inhabitants like Lifeinvader lawyers and startup CEOs.

Regulations

Just like in Mirror Park, a homeowner's association governs Rockford Hills. They enforce rules on appearances, noise, guests and more. Fines for infractions like overgrown lawns or visible trash cans are common. But Rockford Hills residents are willing to pay the price for the exclusivity, security and social prestige.

Revision #1

Created 9 September 2023 09:22:30 by GamingFlamin

Updated 9 September 2023 09:25:25 by GamingFlamin